Trinkets and Clothing Piled on Woman's Funeral Pyre.

Mourning Mariposa Indians Throw Their Own Clothes in Flames.

Woman's House Torn Down and New One Begun at Once.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 4.—An old Indian squaw who died on the Maricopa reservation recently was, according to the traditions of her ancestors, cremated with all the rites and ceremonies that were in vogue in the earliest history of

The funeral pyre was made of mesquite wood cut in short lengths and sev-eral feet high, upon which was placed the body of the woman, with all her personal effects.

Her most valued trinkets, her most admired clothing, and all that she val-ed most highly was placed by the side The medicine man of the tribe, with natch, ignited the dry grass which had been placed under the wood, and in a short time the body and the trinkets ere consumed.

funeral oration, while old and young marched in a circle around the burning body, their cries of grief being heard miles away marcaed in a circle around the burning body, their cries of grief being heard miles away.

As the sorrowing ones marched around the body they took off portions of their clothing and cast them into the flames. This was continued until the body of the squaw was reduced to ashes, and many were almost denuded of all garments. The articles which were held of the highest value by the mourning friends were committed to the flames.

The house in which the deceased had lived for years was also burned, and the erection of a new one begun at once by members of the tribe.

The younger members of this tribe, who have professe! Christianity, follow the burial service of the white man, but the older ones adhere to the customs and rites of their fathers.

Prince of Monaco Relates Some Wonderful Results of His Far-North Expedition-Wonderful Sights

From Balloons.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The Prince of Monaco has communicated to the French Academy of Science a report on his scientific campaign in the Arctic regions in 1906. The prince took with him on this expedition two vessels, the Princesse Alice and the Ovedfjord, and was accompanied by eighty scientists and saffors.

One of the most important and interesting exploits of the expedition was the work done by a party of seven Norwegians and a Frenchman, who were left on Spitzbergen by the prince to carry out geodetic works in the hitherto unexplored mountains of the northwest. These men covered 1,800 miles over the interior glaciers without any resources but those brought with them in their dog train. They did not see the vessel nor their other comrades for over twenty-six days.

The results obtained by this expedition in the shape of landscape paintings.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—"Hold on there, mister! You can't take them kids to no angels' home nor no place else. Them kids is my sisters, an' I takes care of 'em. I ain't afraid o' you."

The little boy who had thus defied the officer from the Humane Society who wanted to take away his sisters, stood before Judge Wilbur on the charge of being incorrigible.

His name was Charlie Darlins. He said he was fourteen years of age, but he did not look more than twelve.

Special Agent Dearborn said that some months ago charles mother had been taken to an insane asylum. At the little home remained two small girls and a boy who were placed in charge of Charlie, while the father, Charles Darling, was at work.

The father spent his money in drink rather than provide for the house.

The only thing that was brought up against Charlie was the fact that he had defended his home against invasion of Humane Society officers who wanted to take his sisters to the Guardian Angel Home.

When Agent Dearborn entered the house he was confronted by Charlie.

About a month ago physicians, who examined Williams regularly, told him he should stop work, or the aneurism would burst. He was removed to the hospital, and since remained in bed, scarcely daring to move.

As a last resort, surgeons decided on an operation to save the patient's life. The aneurism was pricked, and as the silver wire was fed into the opening through a needle, it was coiled around inside, so as to form a framework on which the blood could coagulate. It is hoped that the clot thus formed will grow into a new tissue and form a wall, so that when the aneurism does burst the aorta will remain intact. The surgeons cannot yet tell whether the operation was a success.

A Reasonable Plea For the Stomach

If Your Stomach is Lacking in Di-gestive Power, Why Not Help the Stomach Do Its Work—Espe-cially When it Costs Nothing to Try?

Nothing to Try?

Not with drugs, but with a reinforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach? Scientific analysis shows that digestion requires pepsin, nitrogenous ferments, and the secretion of hydrochloric acid. When your food fails to digest, it is proof positive that some of these agents are lucking in your digestive apparatus. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain nothing but these natural elements necessary to digestion and when placed at work in the weak stomach and small intestines, supply what these organs need. They stimulate the gastric glands and gradually bring the digestive organs back to their normal condition. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been subjected to critical chemical tests at home and abroad and are found to contain nothing but natural digestives. Chemical Laboratory. #### CUTICURA REMEDIES A PERFECT SUCCESS

"I wish to let you know that I have used one set of Cuticura Remedies—one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura, but two vials of Cuticura Resolvent Pills—which cost me a dollar and twenty-five cents in all. For a year I have had what they call eczema. I had an itching all over my body, and when I would retire for the night, and the more I would scratch, the more it would itch. I tried all kinds of remedies, but could get no relief. A friend of mine told me to try the Cuticura Remedies which I did, and am very glad I tried them, for I was completely cured. If any of my friends should be troubled with the same disease, I will cheerfully recommend the Cuticura Remedies, and if I know any one who wants to know how I cured myself, I shall be glad to tell them.
